Client Testimonial

"My experience with Lifepoint Healthcare was out of this world. For quite a few years I have been trying to lower my healthcare premiums.

Whatever I tried didn't work. If I did get a cheaper policy, there were always technical stipulations or there would be exclusions etc.

I turned to Lifepoint & somehow they negotiated with my present provider a deal that landed me paying almost half of what I was paying.

It was mind-blowing.

Exactly the same policy but half the price.

I am so grateful & happy."

"Natural Answers To Chronic & Acute Illnesses"

A free question and answer session to mark the opening of

The Holistic Health Clinic in Edgware

To take place at 116 Farm Road HA8 9LW on Sunday 28 July, 3-5 p.m.

With herbal teas, coffee and cakes (organic).

Put your questions to Leah Makover.

Ladies event.

Guests of honour:

Rav Eliezer Shneebalg shlit''a and Mr. Shimon Lewis.

Leah Makover graduated from the Holistic Health College in 2011. In 2012, she opened the Holistic Health Clinic in Stamford Hill where she has conducted over 3,500 consultations. She has now opened additional clinics in Edgware and Hendon. She is a member of the leading guilds for alternative medicine, with many insurance claims met. Through her core practices of Naturopathy and Herbalism, she aims to heal or ameliorate most chronic and acute conditions without side effects or surgery, and assist fertility. Please note: limited seating, so seats can be reserved (no charge) by emailing holistichealthclinic@btinternet.com.

EVENT: 3-5 P.M. SUNDAY 28 JULY, 116 FARM ROAD HA8 9LW. INQUIRIES: 0208 211 7295

What is the North West London Shidduch Initiative and why is it necessary?

When comparing the number of shidduchim being made in recent years to the number of single bochurim and girls in the kehilla it is clear that a new approach is needed. Over the past 20 to 30 years the kehilla has evolved significantly. The previous generation of shidduchim were made in a kehilla which was smaller and more close knit. Most people were familiar, to an extent, with most people and the ratio of shadchonim to singles was much greater.

Boruch Hashem the kehilla has grown exponentially, both in numbers and in breadth. There are now significantly greater numbers of shuls and kehillas within North West London. Our schools are expanding to cope with the ever growing intake.

It is hence time to take a look at the current shidduch system to ensure it is also adapting to the current reality.

With support of all local Rabbonim and shadchonim an event has been arranged to bring about increased awareness and practical knowledge and Be'ezras Hashem to help make the shidduch process smoother and ultimately help more young singles find their bashert!

What is the purpose of the event?

The goal of the event is twofold.

Firstly, to give more people the tools and the confidence to share ideas and make suggestions.

Secondly, to assist the actual shidduch process for singles and for their parents by sharing practical advice on what to expect, what to look out for and how to realistically deal with shidduchim in today's generation

Is this event relevant to me?

"I don't know how to make a shidduch" – "I don't have the confidence to suggest a shidduch"

Firstly, not every suitable idea originates from a professional shadchan. Every one of us knows of a single relative, friend, neighbour or colleague.

Secondly, you do not have to put forward the suggestion directly. You have a good idea? Share it with someone who can take it further!

Shadchonim are increasingly hearing from singles and young couples with ideas for their friends. If every person who thought of a shidduch suggestion could share that idea either directly or by bringing it to a professional shadchan, there would be so many more shidduch opportunities!

Is the event just for those currently interested in a shidduch?

Absolutely not! The event is for the whole kehilla – both singles and parents of all age groups, including those whose children are not yet of marriageable age and those who have Boruch Hashem married off their children. ■

Are you aware that for the last few years a programme has been successfully running in London whereby you can donate tzdokoh to needy individuals from Israel who are fully accredited by the Vaad Hatzdokoh and without the need for those individuals to call on you personally or incur any driver fees or commissions.

The full value of your donations is paid directly to them in Israel without any deductions.

Amounts are tailored to your requirements - subject to a minimum donation.

If you would like to join this convenient and very worthy programme reassured in the knowledge that your Tzdokoh is reaching as many needy individuals as possible;

DARK TAPESTRY

by Ruthie Pearlman

Ilana, who had learned to cook at her mother's knee and had been able to prepare a full Shabbos menu by the time she was fourteen, shrugged. "I suppose you don't have to cook in New York. You have so many places to eat out and take out from if you need to."

"Yeah, but there's nothing like home-cooked food," Leora said, taking another sniff. "Don't tell me you bake your own challoos, too. That would be just too much for me to take in."

"Yes, I do normally, but to be honest, with all this business I really haven't had the head. Luckily I have some in the freezer from before..." Tears welled up. "Hey, hey," Leora said, distressed. She gave Ilana a hug. "I'm here now and we're all going to do our best to find your son. I wouldn't have come all the way from New York if I wasn't determined to find him."

Ilana allowed herself to be comforted and after a few moments composed herself enough to make breakfast for them both. Leora ate heartily and drank a good deal of herbal tea, then asked to use the phone to call Colin's office and see if her equipment had arrived.

"There's a flipping great heap of boxes here taking up all the space," Potter grumbled. "Be ever so grateful if you'd come and take it away, miss, really we would."

"I'll be right there, but not to take it away," Leora informed him. "To set it up, Sergeant White said he would share offices with Colin Sommers and let me have his. I hope that's been arranged."

An audible gulp. "Peter said that? Never known him to be so generous. Well, he's in his own office at the moment, but no doubt if he said that he'll move just as soon as you arrive."

Leora hung up and turned to Ilana. "My stuff has arrived at the police station. I need to get there as soon as I can. How far is it? Can I walk?"

"You can. It's not that far. About ten minutes' walk. Or I could run you there in the car."

Leora looked out the window. Another glorious spring morning. What was all that she had heard about the terrible British weather?

"I wouldn't dream of troubling you. The walk will do me good, and I need the exercise and fresh air to clear my head. I'm still jet-lagged. Just give me the address and a street map. I'm very good at finding things."

"Of course. I think we have a map in the study," Ilana said.

"Thanks." Leora smiled gratefully.

"By the way, the police station is very close to a kosher food store, so you can pick up something to eat later on if you want."

"Perfect," Leora beamed. "If only I had some English money. Could you change some dollars, by any chance?"

Colin woke to find himself lying on top of his blanket. Apparently he had not moved a centimeter since he fell onto it the previous night. He got up painfully. Every muscle seemed to ache, and his head was one huge ball of fuzz. After a shower and shave, he dressed and sat down at his little desk. He opened a drawer he hadn't opened for a long time and drew out of it, from right at the back, a velvet pouch. His fingers brushed the fabric, felt the old familiar bulk of his tefillin, so long abandoned and forgotten. He took them out and held them in his hand, feeling the weight, turning them over and over in his hands, thinking. Then, with a sigh, he put them back in their velvet pouch and into the drawer, closing it out of his life for now. It was the first time he had looked at his tefillin for seven years.

JUST MAKE ONE CALL FOR ALL YOUR SUMMER CAMP NEEDS

He made himself some breakfast and went to phone back the two boys, hopefully before they left for school. Moishie Brandt first.

"I remembered something about that man, the one who talked to Josh while he was playing football."

"Go on," Colin prompted.

"I saw him twice, that's all. Once at the school, once on Josh's road. And when he was on Josh's road, he had someone else with him. In the car."

Colin's senses went on red alert. "He was in a car?" Colin hadn't thought to ask if the man had come by car. In retrospect it made sense. How else would he have gotten there?

"Not in a car," Moishie said patiently, as if talking to an idiot. "There was a car parked and he had come in that. He kept looking back at it as if to see if the lady was still in the car. It was a black car. I think it looked like a Toyota Landcruiser or a Jeep. I couldn't tell the number plate, sorry."

"Just a minute. You said a woman was in the car?"

"Yes, a lady. He kept turning to look at her."

"Did you manage to see what she looked like at all?"

"The car was even further away than the man," Moishie said, and his voice was regretful. "I could see it was a lady, that's all. Sorry."

Colin pressed on. "Did you see what color hair she had, at least? Blonde or dark or red? And did you see if her hair was long or short? Or was she wearing a hat? For heaven's sake, boy, think! Think!"

Moishie Brandt's voice sounded distinctly distressed and on the verge of tears as the frustrated policeman's voice grew more forceful.

"I don't know! I don't know! I have to go to school now. My ride has come."

Colin sighed and backed off. Not having any kids of his own didn't help his skills with other peoples'. Adults might respond well to being leaned on a little, but kids just fell apart. Make a note, Sommers.

"I'm sorry, lad. I didn't mean to make you upset. You've done a sterling job. Just have a think about it again and call me back if you remember anything else, okay?"

"Okay" came the small, sniffy voice. "Bye." The child hung up.

NO-BUT I DO SEE SOME SHOES THAT LOOKS LIKE YOURS HANGING ON THE TELEPHONE WIRES IN FRONT! WHAT'S THAT ALL ABOUT?

OH THAT, HE HE HE! THAT HAPPENED LAST FRIDAY NIGHT, BEFORE MINCHA. WE HAD A CONTEST WHO COULD KICK OUR SHOES HIGHER IN THE AIR. I WON THE CONTEST!... BUT I LOST MY SHOES.

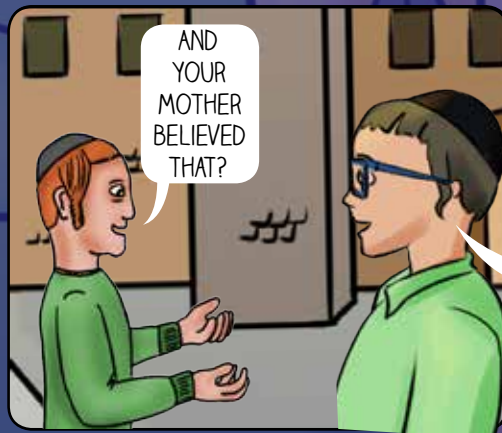

AND WHAT DID YOU TELL YOUR MOTHER FRIDAY NIGHT WHEN YOU CAME HOME WITHOUT YOUR

UM, I TOLD HER THAT I STEPPED INTO A HUGE MUD PUDDLE, AND I COULDN'T GET MY FEET OUT! I HAD TO SHLEP AND SHLEP UNTIL FINALLY MY FEET CAME OUT, WITHOUT THE SHOES!

AND YOUR MOTHER BELIEVED THAT?

WELL, SHE BELIEVED ME UNTIL SHE CAME TO SHUL THE NEXT MORNING AND HAPPENED TO NOTICE A FAMILIAR LOOKING PAIR OF SHOES DANGLING FROM THE TELEPHONE WIRES...
