POWER

At Yeshivas Mordechai Hatzadik
the vast number of 60,000 children streaming to learn Torah on the awesome day of Purim creates an extraordinary power in heaven.

60,000

make it happen!

Each and every year
we bear witness to unbelievable
miracles:

Thousands of people who supported these 60,000 children learning and their heartfelt Tefillos, have seen incredible Yeshuos in
Shidduchim, children, health,

PAR AVION

How are you? I hope the family is fine.

Things here are b'h great. The kids are eating, sleeping well and keeping up with classwork so I'm not complaining! And work is going quite well, all things considered; I got a new client this week. We're gearing up for the big Pesach hurdle. We are pretty nervous as we have no idea how we'll swing it. There are just so many things you have to buy!

...We're waiting anxiously for the TYA campaign; we hope they make a lot of money, so they can help us go to the makolet like normal people and get what we need.

I hear neighbours discussing fancy desserts and cakes but frankly, I'd be happy with some matzah and grape juice...

Best wishes
C. M.

בס"ד י"ז לחודש שבט תשע"ח לפ"ק פעה"ק ירושת"ו

ארשת שפתי יערב נא לחלות את פני אחינו בני ישראל נדיבי עם אלוקי אברהם, לעמוד לימין העסקנים החשובים של קופת "תומכי יוצאי ענגלאנד", אשר נתייסד זה כמה שנים לטובה, לעמוד לימין משפחות יוצאי ענגלאנד שנתיישבו בארה"ק ליישב באהלה של תורה, וביניהם הרבה תלמידי חכמים היגעים בחוקי חורב ויושבים על התורה ועל העבודה מתוך הדחק, ובביתם משפחות ברוכות ילדים כ"י, ומתקשים לכלכל את בני משפחתם כראוי, ומתפרנסים בעניות ודחקות ולפעמים עד פת לחם ממש, ובפרט בהתקרב ימי החגים הבעל"ט שההוצאות מוקיעות לשחקים ולרש אין כל, ועיניהם נשואות לעזרת אחיהם שיבואו לקראתם.

ובזה אקרא בקריאה של חיבה לאחים לדיעה רודפי צדקה וחסד, אנא בואו והושיטו עזרה בתמיכות הגונות עבור בני אברכים עמלי תורה ויראי ה', בכדי שיוכלו להכניס לביתם שמחת החג כראוי בדיצה וחדוה, ואשרי לו למי שיאחז בידם להיות בתומכי נפשם בסיוע שיש בו ממש, הנה שכרו אתו ופעולתו לפניו בזה ובבא, ועץ חיים היא למחזיקים בה ותומכיה מאושר.

זכות המצוה הגדולה הזאת של החזקת תלמידי חכמים יראי ה' מיקורי קרתא דשופריא, יגן בעד כל הנוטלים חלק בה והעושים והמעשים למענה, להתברך בכל מילי דמיטב בשפע ברכה והצלחה בכל מעשה ידיהם לטובה, ואך טוב וחסד ירדפם כל ימי חייהם מתוך בריות גופא ונהורא מעליא, וגדולה צדקה שמקרבת את הגאולה, ובקרב נזכה לישועתן של ישראל בביאת משיח צדקינו בב"א.

CHARITY PROJECTS

A huge scope of charity work provides relief and assistance to thousands of families, with an emphasis on large families and difficult welfare cases.

Project Refuah for children with special needs

Project Refuah for children with special needs

Project Refuah - an organization for children with special needs and their families, was established in order to serve as an "extended family" for the parents and siblings of children with special needs.

Project Refuah's Margo'a Respite Home serves as a warm second home for children with special needs, where they can visit in the afternoon hours, overnight, for a few hours or a few days, as necessary. The Margo'a Respite Home in Bnei Brak is always open, providing indescribable relief to the parents and the children. An additional respite home has recently opened in Jerusalem and is steadily growing.

Camp Werdiger Holiday Camp - a delightful camp experience over the holidays for hundreds of children with special needs from all communities and sectors. The camp takes place during the holidays and offers lots of exciting activities for the children to enjoy. Tremendous logistical planning is necessary to facilitate this "camp" experience, and a huge campus is rented specifically for this purpose.

Shabbat Hosting Project - during which a hundreds of children with special needs are placed in special volunteer hosts' homes for Shabbat.

A large-scale transportation arrangement and complex logistics help bring light to hundreds of families from all communities and stripes.

Project Refuah runs many other initiatives as well, such as Bar Mitzvah celebrations, and more.

Deliveries

Family Assistance

Holiday distribution - basic staples delivered directly to thousands of needy families before major holidays:

Clothing Fund Kavod Fund - a groundbreaking initiative which provides top-quality wear for significantly discounted prices, enabling families to purchase fashionable new clothes for the holiday without putting too much strain on the family budget;

Medical assistance - is also provided through various programs such as a medical equipment loan program and other solutions for patients and their families.

A large portion of the charity work is directed at the general public including, for example, Project Refuah and the Yad Hamishpachah initiative which provides bread and milk to every child - an initiative begun over five years ago and which by now has been embraced by a number of other important communities.

TORAH EDUCATION

Hebrew boys' schools (Yeshivahs) in nine locations in Israel, servicing thousands of students;

Gur's High School Yeshivahs, including a "Mesivta" for Bar-Mitzvah age boys, a "Yeshivah ketanah" for ages 16-14, "Yeshivah Gevohah" for adolescents and "Yeshivah gedolah" for older teens. In total, the institutions comprise over 20 Yeshivahs throughout the country, in Jerusalem, Bnei Brak, Bet Shemesh, Hatzor, Arad and Ashdod. Over 3,000 students attend these yeshivahs.

The Ichud serves as these educational institutions' financial backing, providing monthly support of hundreds of shekels per student. A Tutoring program is implemented in our institutions to provide crucial assistance to struggling students.

A Kollel Network - in every one of Gur's communities in Israel, where young married men explore various Torah fields in regular study programs and with periodical exams.

Thankfully, the Gur community has well-off friends who provide regular assistance, and prestigious conferences are held every two years for a group of philanthropists, friends of the institutions around the world. However, it is not enough...

A special one-time crowdfunding campaign is currently being launched, along with a call for special donations from important foundations and affluent friends. The campaign is likely to affect the Ichud's activities over the next few years.

Your donation at this time will provide us with tremendous assistance and the ability to continue our important activities - for Torah, for education, and for the community.

DARK TAPESTRY

by Ruthie Pearlman

"Yeah, but to be honest with you, they're loyal and efficient in their own way, and they don't waste time. When one of them was off sick for a while, we took a young girl as a temp. She knew all about the Internet, could type like a rocket — and was absolutely useless."

"Oh?"

"Within seconds she had telnetted into an IRC server and was using the chat rooms to talk to her friends instead of working. She cost the company a fortune in work not done. Lucky our permanent connection meant no extra phone bills, too. We got rid of her as soon as we could and were glad to get our old, computer-illiterate secretary back again."

Colin grinned. "Heh. I see. So newer isn't always better."

"By no means."

"Okay. Now your tech-support people. Tell me about them."

"Three have been with us for over a year. They're slightly older than the usual techie types. Harry, Ewan, and Dave are in their early forties, graying, and very good at what they do. The other two, Ben and Kev, are young. Early twenties, fresh out of college with computer science degrees. They know everything there is to know about building and maintaining a computer from the bottom up and absolutely nothing about customer relations. Their telephone manner leaves a lot to be desired, but they know their job so well that we turn a blind eye. Ilana has been trying to teach them how to be polite and helpful on the phone and not laugh when a newbie phones in with some query the two guys perceive as ignorant. Like the lady who phoned in complaining that her coffee cup holder was broken on the front of her computer."

Colin looked puzzled for a moment.

"She had been using her CD-ROM drive to hold her coffee cups."

Colin laughed aloud.

"And the middle-aged man who complained that he couldn't get onto the Internet. The two youngsters took him through all the jargon, which went way over his head, trying to reconfigure his modem strings and making sure he had his IP address correctly entered. When Ilana took over that call, she found out the customer didn't actually have a modem. They need to learn that not everyone has a handle on computers like they do. Well, they're learning now, thanks to Ilana." Don stopped, looking stricken. "I hope she'll get over this. Right now she can't do a thing in the office. She wanders around like a robot on autopilot."

"Can you give me a list of all your employees, their names and addresses?" Colin asked.

"Sure. I'll prepare it for you tonight. Can I e-mail it to you here?"

"E-mails have a strange connotation for us at the moment, don't they? But yes, of course. Go right ahead."

Ilana reappeared at that moment, carrying a cup of tea and looking calmer. "Sorry," she said, somewhat shamefacedly.

"Please don't apologize, Mrs. Hardman. Sit down and we'll explain what we have been discussing. Maybe you have some more input into this e-mail."

"Now I think I might be able to look at it without losing control," Ilana said, and she did indeed appear much calmer.

"It's this bit about revenge. Do you have any idea who might want to take revenge on you or your husband?"

"Absolutely not." There was a pause. "Well, none that I know of. One never knows for sure, does one. You can think people like you, and really they don't. People don't always say and do what they mean."

They looked at Ilana, not saying a word. She smiled enigmatically.

"Are you referring to anyone in particular, Mrs. Hardman?" Colin asked.

"Can't you see? Someone has taken my son. Someone who seems to know us. Otherwise, why would they want to take revenge on us? So I have to accept that the people I know and trust have turned on us. Someone has turned on us. I can't trust anyone until I find out who did this to us." She paused for a moment, staring into her cup of tea, then took a sip. "Suddenly I am seeing shadows where there were none before. I am suspicious of people I consider my friends. Maybe one of them took my baby. Maybe the person I smiled at in the street, maybe the shopkeeper I visit regularly. Maybe, maybe, maybe. I suspect everyone, trust no one. It's a horrid thing to feel."

"It's hardly likely that someone still around has Josh," Don pointed out gently. "The abductor is obviously with him."

"Not necessarily. Maybe they've got him hidden somewhere while they conduct an outwardly blameless life here in Golders Green. Maybe they have an accomplice to look after him while they smile at me as if butter wouldn't melt in their mouth. I'd rather he did have an accomplice. I hate the thought of my baby being left on his own while someone is pretending to be perfectly normal and smiling at me in the street."

"That's not likely," Colin said again. "It would take a huge amount of brazenness for an abductor to live a normal life while having a child hidden somewhere."

"Then it's easy," Ilana said brightly. "All we do is look around the community and see who's missing." She smiled brilliantly. "Case solved!"

Sha'arei Chessed. A unique area of Jerusalem, totally singular. One of the oldest neighborhoods in the new city, it had been originally built in 1910, a ramshackle hotchpotch of tumbledown shacks and houses, some with corrugated iron roofs and doors, some solidly built in the Arab style with thick stone walls and arched windows. It had become home to many great sages. Over the years, particularly in the last decade, Sha'arei Chessed's location, a mere ten minutes' walk from the center of town, had made it an attractive chunk of real estate for development. Slowly the ramshackle shacks were being replaced by elegant new townhouses and apartments, and now the area had a half-and-half look. Some of the streets had the look of a dormitory town — empty most of the year, full of life for the summer and Jewish holidays such as Pesach and Sukkos. Some locals were thinking of moving on.

In an apartment building on Ibn Shaprut Street, Avi Pincus sat, furiously working on his computer. He and his wife and four children had made aliyah recently and had their combined eye on a house a bit nearer to the shul called the Gra, but until Pincus earned enough money, it was way beyond their reach.

Avi was a skilled programmer and had nabbed himself a good job with a software company in Jerusalem, but despite working extra hours and taking work home, he was struggling to meet his everyday family commitments, never mind putting away some savings. The house in Sha'arei Chessed was looking as far away as ever.

Avi finished the program and sent it into the office via e-mail. He blessed the cheap Bezek rates that compared so favorably with British Telecom, and he blessed the fast service from his Net provider. It saved time and money, both of which were in short supply right now.
