Tip #3

How does my credit report affect me?

It affects your ability to obtain many financial products. Not just mortgages, credit cards or loans, but also things as basic as taking out a mobile phone contract, monthly car insurance, or opening a bank account. Before allowing a customer to take out a new financial product, companies will often check their credit rating and make their decision based on that.

Missing regular payments or late payments to your credit card or other lenders will most likely seriously impact your rating, and may appear on your report for up to 6 years, further affecting your financial health and ability to obtain products many consider essential. Everyone should take time to manage and boost their credit rating.

It affects us in far more ways than we think, and the importance of credit scoring to our financial lives has grown rapidly. Here's a quick rundown of a number of major financial areas.

Mortgages, Credit cards & Loans

If your credit score is poor, you'll likely be rejected or be very limited in which products are offered to you. If you're planning to get a new mortgage or remortgage, it's worth starting to manage your credit file at least a year in advance.

Utility bills

Sharing data has now spread to utility companies too, making it even more important to pay your bill on time, or it could harm your chances of applying for other credit such as a loan, credit card or mortgage. Of course, paying it on time can improve your chances too.

Mobile phones

If you're getting a contract mobile phone, you're credit checked. If you're rejected, you won't get a contract, and will have to stick with pay as you go.

Car and home insurance

If you opt to pay monthly, the company runs a credit check.

Next week: Tip #4 Why Should I Check My Credit Report?

ADVICE FOR TRAVELLERS COMING OR RETURNING TO THE UK

There is now no longer a list of Amber or Green countries; if you are returning from a Non-Red country the system has been simplified. The requirements depend on whether or not you have been fully vaccinated (second vaccine over 14 days ago) in an approved country (including the UK, Israel, USA/Canada and most European countries).

If you are fully vaccinated all you need to do is

- Complete the Passenger Locator Form (PLF)
- Before you travel, book a PCR test for Day 2 following your arrival

If you are not fully vaccinated then you need to

- Complete the Passenger Locator Form (PLF)
- Take a pre-departure test (rapid antigen or PCR) within 72 hours of leaving for the UK
- Quarantine for 10 full days following the date of your arrival into the UK
- Take two PCR tests - the first on Day 2, as well as a second test on Day 8 (to be booked before you travel)
- Optional - Take a PCR test on Day 5 following your arrival (Test to Release)

For up to date guidance, visit <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/travel-to-england-from-another-country-during-coronavirus-covid-19>

We can help you with all of your testing requirements, as well as with fit to fly tests for travelling outside of the UK
