SHUVU

Dana Chazanov, Shuvu Petach Tikva High School for Girls

Until 7th grade, I was learning in an irreligious school. After that, my mother wanted me to move to Shuvu because she herself was becoming closer to religion.

Before starting 8th grade I asked my mother where I would be going. Which school? She said I'd be going to a religious school, and it would be good for me.

My little brother and I moved here, and the principal welcomed us very warmly.

I came to Shuvu Petach Tikva for Girls and didn't know what they were doing. I saw the other students were bowing to something, but I didn't even know to what. I didn't know anything, what a Siddur is or what praying is.

My first teacher in Shuvu gave me a Siddur as a present, and taught me where to bow, and how to bow, and what to do. I learned how to pray. I learned how to light Shabbat candles, how to make Havdala, and how to keep Shabbat.

Because of Shuvu I kept Shabbat for the first time. At first I didn't know how to keep Shabbat, but then I also helped my mother. I taught her how to keep Shabbat and how to be more religious. We started to light candles, and we both started keeping Shabbat.

I know now what it means to be Jewish!

OUR TOMORROW IS IN YOUR HANDS

The school is now required to vacate its current premises on Golders Green Road. The time has now come to build a permanent home for the school, with classrooms that are fit for purpose, that can only be achieved with the help of the community. We hope that we can rely on your generous support to help the kehillah ensure Klal Yisroel's future for all generations.

First of all I would like to thank you for the beautiful contribution that we received from you - it really helped us out for our expenses and was a real help.

again Thank you very much and may you be successful all the time to be able to help many more people and see you soon.

אני רוצה לומר תודה רבה לך על התרומה היפה שנתת לנו. זה עזר לנו מאוד בעלויות שלנו וזו הייתה עזרה אמיתית.

תודה רבה שוב, ונראה לך בהצלחה בכל מה שאתה עושה. נראה לך מתי.

To the generous person who would like to thank you for special donation for us. You should only know how the money to make the life of expenses for Yomtov that much easier, and ability to see you again.

A special thanks to the staff of TYA undoubtedly work hard to put this together - it's no less a gift for us. We are very grateful to you and the staff of TYA.

I would just like to thank the organisers and fundraisers at TYA for the kind and generous check that I received once again for Yomtov.

It was generous. It was extremely helpful. It was heartwarming. I know that there is hours of work and administration involved running this wonderful organisation.

הן זאת מודעת בכל הארץ קושי הפרנסה בארה"ק, ובפרט אברכים אשר קבעו מושבם בבית ד' על התורה ועל העבודה נתונים תחת הלחץ זו הדחק. ועיניהם של עניי א"י נשואות אל אחיהם יושבי חו"ל אשר יבואו לעזרתם.

ועל אף שמצות הצדקה והחסד הוא לכל ישראל קבעו חז"ל דיני קדימה כגון עניי עירך קודמין. וכן יש עדיפות לעניי א"י לגבי שאר עניים, ובנוגע לעניי א"י נהגו מקדם קדמתה להקדים העניים בא"י יוצאי ארצם. ועל יסוד זה יש כוללים שונים בא"י לארצותם, ואשר על כן בואו ונחזיק טובה לכמה עסקנים חשובים אשר לקחו משימה זו על שכמם ויסדו קופה בשם "תומכי יוצאי אנגליה" אשר תומכים באחינו בא"י יוצאי אנגליה, והוא דבר גדול להביא הרחבת הדעת בבתים אלה, בידעם כי מזמן לזמן מקבלים תמיכה הגונה ועל כן נבקש מאת אחב"י ליקח חבל במצוה רבה זו ולהשתתף בעין יפה בקופה זו.

וזכות הצדקה והחסד וזכות התורה יגן על כל המשתתפים להתברך ממקור
הברכות בבני חיי ומוזני רוחי וציון במשפט תפדה ושבי' בצדקה. ונזכה
בעגלא דידן לראות בישועתן של ישראל מתוך רחמים רבים.

RAISE YOUR DAY RAISE THE YEAR

This title sounds interesting – tell me more?

The numerical value of the word שנה is 354. We want to raise a year's worth of funding for our esteemed Avreichim and Mechanchim so that they can continue learning Bimruchas Hanefesh.

Well that explains what raise the year means, what does raise your day mean?

Our goal is to raise £200,000 and it is all or nothing. This means our matchers will only match if we raise £100,000. So if you divide £200,000 by 354 you get £565. If you have followed this you will now understand what raise your day means.

What is The London Chaburah?

This is the name for a very unique Kollel housed in Kol Yaakov Beis Hamidrash, Edgware that has a group of very Choshove Bnei Torah who are committed to becoming Talmidei Chachomim of stature. This very same Kollel is also home to a group of serious Mechanchim who commit every afternoon to a Seder before they continue with their next day's preparation.

All this has been ably led over the last few years by Rabbi Yosef Chaim Orzel Shlita who has given days and years to shoulder the financial burden of this Kollel.

So are you clearer? By donating towards a day we'll help raise the year, should it be a Yahrzeit, birthday or the day you moved into your house....and raise much needed funds so this Kollel can continue its vital Avodas Hakoidesh.

Thank you so much for your support as any donation big or small is truly appreciated.

DARK TAPESTRY

by Ruthie Pearlman

At Colin's apartment, some considerable time was spent looking for Ben's phone number. He hadn't needed it for ten years. Had he destroyed it with the rest of his past? He rummaged around for ages without success. Finally he sat down and tried to remember it, but he couldn't even recall the address.

"If I had the address, I could phone Information and get the phone number. Why can't I remember where he lived?"

Lucy took a deep breath. "You could always go and ask your parents."

He looked at her.

"If Ben was your friend, then surely they would know where he is."

"I haven't been to see my parents for ten years, Lucy."

"Well, until today I didn't know you had any parents, so this is all news to me, too."

They exchanged a long look.

"I'm sorry, Lucy, I really am. I knew that if I told you the truth it would be over between us. And until now I wasn't ready to admit it, even to myself."

"Yes, I know," Lucy said, studying her shoes. She cast around desperately for something to say to make things better between them, but the right words wouldn't come. Part of her was curious to see the parents she had not known existed, but the other part, the stronger part, knew this would be impossible now. What would his parents, delighted to see their son again after so long, make of this non-Jewish woman at his side?

"Well," she said at last, "I'll be off. Glad to be of service, Colin."

She started to walk away.

"Lucy..."

She turned on her heel and their eyes met.

They stood there a few more moments, looking at each other, never having imagined it would end like this, wordlessly, hopelessly, without closure, without saying goodbye, without saying thanks for the good times. It was like dying suddenly.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

Before going to see his parents, Colin went back to his office. Besides putting off the inevitable, he needed time and space to assimilate what had just happened to him. It seemed that in the past hour his life had turned inside out. He had known Lucy for four years. A long time. A chunk of his life that was now a Lucy-shaped hole in the universe.

Colin sat at his desk and put his head in his hands. Peter came in, concerned.

"Colin? Mate? Colin, what's up? Colin, speak to me."

Colin raised his head. "Lucy and me. We just split up."

Peter drew up a chair, twisted it around, and sat on it cowboy-style, back to front. "I don't believe it. I thought you two were set up for life. What on earth happened?"

Colin sighed. "Life happened. Truth happened. The inevitable happened."

"Truth? Life? Inevitable? Talk sense, man."

"In for a penny, in for a pound, I suppose," Colin said, mostly to himself. He looked at his partner. "Peter, I told Lucy the truth about myself. That's why we split. I told her I was not the gentile orphan she had thought I was, but I am, in fact, a failed Orthodox Jew with parents living right here in Golders Green."

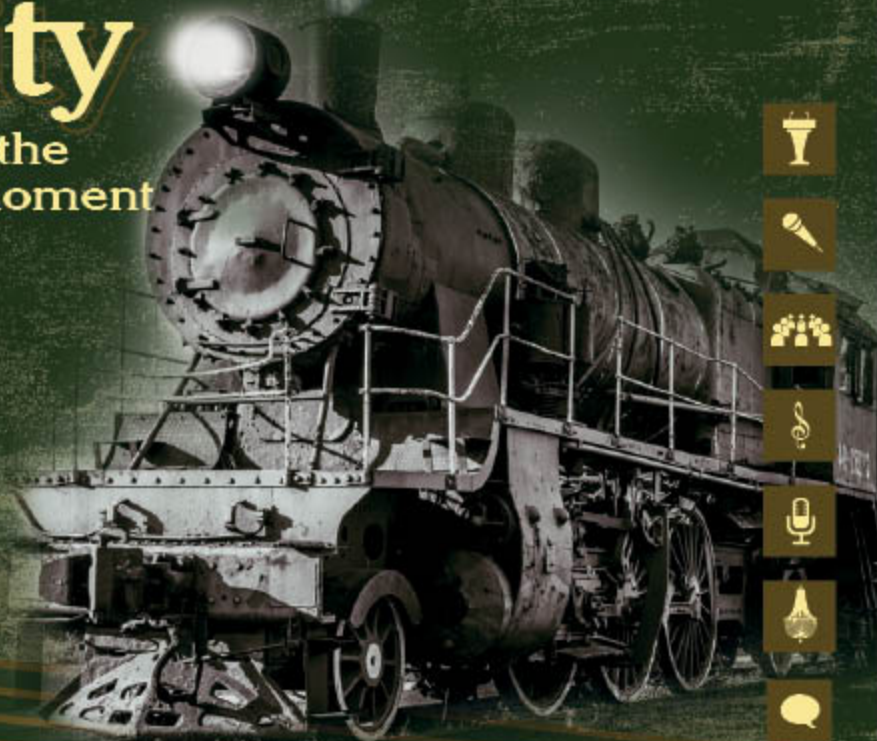

Peter stared at him. "You're Jewish? You have to be kidding me, Colin. You look like the biggest gentile I've ever seen."

Colin couldn't help laughing. "Yeah, it's a look I cultivated over the last ten years. I never had a Jewish nose anyway. I just grew my hair, and the rest kind of followed."

"You Jewish. I just can't believe it. It takes some getting used to. Mind you, it explains quite a few things. It explains why you were so set against going back into Golders Green and kept shoving all the Orthodox cases onto me. It also explains why recently you've started behaving differently about Jews. I even commented on it."

"Yes, you did."

There was a pause. "I'm sorry about Lucy, though," Peter said at last.

Colin looked at him. "I'm upset, too. But you know what? If I hadn't been ready for things to change between us, I wouldn't have done the big confession bit. I knew, by telling her, what would happen. So I was crafting my own destiny, really, wasn't I. I was ready to make that step, knowing the chain of events it would inevitably set in motion. So I reckon, whatever I am feeling now, things will sort themselves and I did the right thing by telling her."

"So what's happening now?" Peter asked, trying to imagine life without Marie. He couldn't.

"Well, as it turns out, the last thing Lucy and I did together was find a lead in the Hardman case. She found out that all the poems were clips from Shakespeare. And it all made sense. The Fox often used the name Bill Venice, which is a combination of William and The Merchant of Venice. And I remembered a guy in my youth who called himself Shake who was instrumental in turning me off being Orthodox. He used twisted arguments to augment my own doubts. From what I recall, he fits the description of the Fox. Tall, gangly, bearded, piercing blue eyes, American accent."

"But why on earth would the Fox take Josh Hardman to get at you?" Peter said. "It doesn't fit at all, Colin."

"No, it doesn't. Unless..."

"Unless what?"

"Unless my connection with Shake has absolutely nothing to do with why Josh Hardman was taken. It was merely a coincidence, and Shake has absolutely no idea that he and the policeman he is trying to outwit ever met under very different circumstances."

"In which case," Peter said excitedly, "you could have an immense advantage. You know the Fox, and he doesn't know you know him."

"If it is the same person, of course," Colin mused. "And if I recognize him after all these years."

"All these years? It's only ten, for heaven's sake, not half a lifetime. People don't change that much in ten years."

"Maybe. Anyway, I have to find Ben. Ben is the mate I used to escape from religion with. He took me to parties. He took me to the party where I met Shake. Shake was at another party at Ben's place, too. That was the finish of me, really. I owe my total destruction to that guy, helped along by liberal doses of my own stupidity, of course."

"So let's find Ben."

"That's the problem. I can't remember where he lived, what his number is, even what his surname is. The only people who might remember it are my parents, whom I haven't contacted for almost ten years. They used to come to Ben's house to try and get me to come home after I moved in there, so they should remember where it is."

"Good time to start, then," Peter said, smiling.

"It's hard, Peter. It's been so long. They've given up. When they heard I was seeing Lucy, a non-Jew, they just cut me out of their lives altogether. They didn't go as far as to mourn my death, which is done sometimes if a child marries out of the faith. I hadn't married her."
