Security Specialist Celebrates Two Years With Top Simcha Planner

Most communities associate security with A-List concerts and major royal events. Leading events planner, Moshe Davis, realised that the requirement for a reliable security presence is all the more critical when bringing together your nearest and dearest for a big simcha.

Moshe Davis, who has 26 years' experience delivering weddings and Bar and Bat Mitzvahs, said: "understanding the importance of the safety of all guests, clients and the venue itself is critical for every event I organise. So I knew I wanted to find a long-term security partner I can rely on".

Moshe Davis started working with Supreme Protection Ltd. two years ago and has found that clients and venues really feel the benefit of a dedicated security presence at their function.

In recent years, Jewish events have seen increased antisocial attention and the community has been encouraged to exercise vigilance in day-to-day life, such as not congregating outside of Synagogue buildings.

Supreme Protection Ltd. work with event planners, such as Moshe Davis, to ensure that private functions and simchas also go without a hitch.

A spokesperson for the London-based security firm said: "Security isn't just for big concerts and festivals – it helps keep guests and staff safe at any event. No matter how big or small. " They added, "A good security teams will also help reduce the risk of damage to the venue, keeping those all-important costs down".

For this reason, it's not unusual for venues to require a security presence at large private functions, and working with a recognised and trusted security partner offers both the venue and client peace of mind throughout the event. A security consultant for Supreme Protection Ltd. advised that security ought to be as high on the list of priorities as the menu and band, and certainly higher than the colour scheme of the bridesmaids' dresses.

Beyond security guards checking bags on entry and discreetly patrolling the venue throughout your event, experts recommend engaging a security specialist to deliver other services, such as reception and concierge, CCTV, and manned guarding.

Companies like Supreme Protection Ltd. offer close protection and even security dog services, which may be appropriate for more elaborate events, especially if you are working alongside high-profile performers.

A company spokesperson said: "We have a number of huge Bar and Bat Mitzvah celebrations in the works, making the most of our fledgling freedom after the last couple of years of lockdown. Some siblings are sharing their celebrations and their parents are going all out with top level talent, which their friends and family will remember forever. Of course, big names need big security provision, which is where we step in."

Advice for those planning large scale private functions, especially if using a popular party venue or making a splash about your event on social media in advance, is to seek out an ACS Approved security provider – that way, you can focus on the party.

Tip #6 What should I do if my credit report is low? Can I boost it?

There are a number of ways to boost your credit score, such as ensuring you are on the electoral register, ensuring all your financial products (bank accounts, credit cards etc) are all registered to the same address, and reducing the amount you owe.

He introduced new programmes which has eased the workload and enabled us to concentrate on the important stuff. His personal and friendly approach made the whole experience ever more enjoyable and successful!"

MR, Finance Sector
