This was our first holiday that the whole family was able to travel together. With all our luggage securely packed in the Roadtrip Kit on top of our car there was no need for half the family to travel by train. Thank you so much for a great product.

B.S.

Roadtrip Kit has surpassed all our expectations way better than we thought it would be, extremely spacious and easy to use and packed away in the storage bag during our holiday. We travelled cross country trip from London to the French Alps and the bag was just as sturdy at the end of our 16 hour journey as it was at the beginning. Would definitely recommend

5 star. M.G.

It was an amazing product! Wherever I went people went crazy over it. It was very easy installing it on the car and had plenty space for all our luggage. Thanks it was an amazing experience!

I was in Kent on Greatstone Beach.

BEST BUY!!!
I have used this rooftop on a long journey and find it is great value. I drove on full speed and I found it very safe and secure. It's extremely compact, easy to fit and easy to store.

M.L.

As a family of seven, most of our stuff fit in the bag so we were able to seat everybody in the car with comfort. We had a long drive to our destination and some of the time was pouring rain, upon arrival our stuff was as dry as it was when packed.

S.R.

It's excellent I recommend it to anyone!

DARK TAPESTRY

by Ruthie Pearlman

"No idea. I can ask. What will you look for in the shoe tread?" Peter asked.

"Most physical evidence concerns itself with class characteristics and individual characteristics. Class characteristics are those characteristics that are common to a group of similar objects. For example, you buy a pair of Air Jordan sneakers. All Air Jordan sneakers have the same shape and tread design on the bottom. These are class characteristics. Individual characteristics are those characteristics that are unique to a given object and set it apart from similar objects. You wear your Air Jordans around for a while and they get worn. The treads wear down. You put more pressure on the left heel. They get little pits and gouges in them. These little pits and gouges are individual to your shoes and no others, since no one has walked over the exact same surfaces in the exact same way in their Air Jordans. So it is possible to trace someone from a footprint, or find another pair of shoes similarly worn down, to prove they belong to the same person."

While she was talking, Leora was screwing together the various pieces of machinery that made up her forensic tool kit. They watched her deftly moving and securing, fixing and fastening. They also noticed how orderly she was. The boxes were neatly stored one inside the other in a closet full of Peter's belongings which she had tidied up to create space he had never believed existed there. Peter admitted shamefully to himself that he had always been meaning to tidy up that particular cupboard.

The rented equipment itself was put neatly in place on various surfaces, and boxes of latex gloves, tweezers, and other such things neatly stored away. Once the room was tidy, she set about with a cleaning cloth and spray until all the dusty surfaces revealed by the evacuation of Peter's belongings had been banished and the place sparkled. Then she scrubbed her hands in the washroom and put on the first pair of thin latex gloves. A grin and "Okay, guys, where's Joe with the evidence?"

Colin clapped his hands, maitre d' style. "Joe! The evidence!"

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Malka shaped the challos and set them aside to rise for the second time. She looked at the Shabbos table, already laid, just the way she liked it. Even though Shabbos had started coming in later and she had plenty of time, she still felt nervous until everything was ready. She was listening for her visitor, but he seemed to be sleeping the "sleep of the just." She hoped he had found something that would help bring back little Josh.

Malka thought of her lively, healthy family, driving her totally bananas at times, yes, making her heart ache with pain and frustration, yes, all the time wishing kids came with instruction manuals or had backup service, but...

But at least she had her children around her. At least they were alive and kicking and well enough to drive her to distraction. She thought of her friend, Ilana Hardman, cutting herself off from her friends and supporters because, understandably, she just couldn't cope with everyone's well-meaning sympathy. Malka thought that even though the sympathy and well-meaning support were from the heart, she felt it was tinged by just a little touch of self-righteousness and ever so marginally a touch of smugness as Golders Green's mother hens gathered their nestlings safe around them. People were human, after all, and however much they wanted to feel selfless empathy and pity, it was not always possible when the haves and the have-nots were so starkly divided. Now that Ilana had joined the unfortunate ranks of the childless (hopefully temporarily, but who knew?), she became a nonmember of the exclusive sisterhood — the sisterhood every woman joined when she gave birth to her first child. It was impossible to belong to it without having gone through that initiation and it was unfortunately possible to be un-joined from it if one no longer had the requisite specifications. So rapt was she in her musings that Malka started with surprise as Avi Pincus stumbled into the kitchen, gazing around him bleary-eyed.

"Good morning," she said brightly. "I think you might just have time to daven shacharis if you really put your skates on."

Avi gave the kitchen clock a blurry glance. "Actually, I davened vasikin before I came in. I hope I didn't disturb you."

"No, I was up anyway. My youngest, Yossi, wanted a bottle. Normally I would sleep through a middle-sized earthquake. So my husband tells me, anyway."

"Well, it was a missed night's sleep well spent, if you get my meaning."

Malka placed a pile of hot toast and some packets of cereal and milk in front of him. "I suppose one could just about call it breakfast time." She grinned. "Tea or coffee?"

"It's brunch, and I'll stick to toast and coffee, maybe a little cheese, if you have any?"

"Sure." Malka brought out a selection of hard and soft cheeses that would do any top restaurant's cheese board selection proud.

"Wow, such choice! Which shall I go for?"

"If you like hard cheese, these baby Goudas in the red netting are wonderful. I have some fresh baby plum tomatoes to go with them," said Malka with all the aplomb of a top chef. "Sounds wonderful! I don't suppose you have a strawberry yogurt as well, by any chance?"

"Surely do," and Malka brought out a selection of various fruity yogurts at which Avi gasped appreciatively. Malka glowed. It was nice to have a grateful guest who was so enthusiastic about everything she put in front of him. Unfortunate but true, as a marriage proceeded and lengthened over the years, a wife tended to get taken for granted more and more. Malka was lucky if Baruch grunted her a "thank you" when she made his meals these days.

Avi washed and ate some toast. "I have a name and an address for the Fox," he said without preamble.

"You do? Well, then, let's go get him!" Malka clapped her hands excitedly like a little girl. Avi took a big bite of toast, cheese, and tomato, munching loudly, and slurped some yogurt. His table manners made Malka suddenly realize that Baruch wasn't so bad after all. She found herself edging away from her house guest.
